

Amica Systems establishes a new subsidiary in the UK

SOCIAL SHARE OR EMAIL TO COLLEAGUE

Amica Systems have recently founded a new subsidiary in the United Kingdom operating as Amica Systems UK which is located in Leicestershire.

Amica Systems Europe Managing Director, Mr Patrick Citroen says: "This UK office is established to service not only our strong growing European office but also for our current successful installations in the UK, but also to develop new sales opportunities from our new office for the UK market. We trust that the newly acquired UK facility will secure our position in the European and the UK market to match our continuous growth and the need for this expansion."

The initial goal of the UK facility is to test newly developed inkjet systems further ensuring they meet the standards expected of our customers whilst also testing key components and customised projects that have become a real strength to our sustainability. Patrick Citroen says: "David Fell, our European Technical Manager, who lives in the UK, will drive this UK facility. Because his major experience and knowledge in the field of Inkjet David will be responsible for all final testing and development." General service and support will also be conducted from this facility parallel to the European office.
